

Youth Development Manager - Seed and Dirt Crew North Shore

Who We Are

Youth. Food. Community. Three important issues that intersect in one place: The Food Project. Here, we believe that food is a unique vehicle for creating personal and social change. Nothing else ties us so intimately to each other and the planet we share, affecting our health, the climate, culture, and poverty and privilege around the globe. If we — young and old from all walks of life — can unite to change the food system, we can change the world. From our urban and suburban farms to our community education programs, we aim to do just that by bringing together youth and adults from diverse backgrounds who work together to build local and sustainable food systems.

Since 1991, The Food Project has built a national model of engaging young people in personal and social change through sustainable agriculture. Each year, we work with more than 120 teenagers and nearly 2,000 volunteers to farm on 70 acres in eastern Massachusetts in the towns and cities of Wenham, Lincoln, Boston, and Lynn. We consider our hallmark to be our focus on identifying and transforming a new generation of leaders by placing teens in unusually responsible roles, with deeply meaningful work. In addition, we help others grow their own food and provide training resources based on all we have learned.

What We Seek

The Food Project's Youth Development Model

At The Food Project we work in three youth crews, each related, but different, dynamic and particular. Seed Crew is a 6.5-week intensive immersion creating the foundation for all that we do — farming, learning about sustainable food systems, personal development, working on a team, learning about systems of oppression, and cultivating a sense of agency to participate in changing oppressive systems on a very local level through the work we do.

At the end of Seed Crew, youth are invited to apply for Dirt Crew.

Crew Members in Dirt Crew take all that they have learned and experienced in the summer and deepen and stretch that learning across 8 months in the academic season through more advanced workshops, leading volunteers on our farms, and by taking lead on Build a Garden, getting to know community members who are hoping to have or already have a raised bed garden, building raised bed gardens, planting seedlings, supporting seedling and compost sales, etc.
